VALUE INVESTING – OUR FRAMEWORK

The best foundation for above-average long term performance is the absence of disasters

- Howard Marks

There are essentially two broad ways to succeed

Doing the right things

1. Find growth prospects
2. Assess management quality
3. Estimate profit growth
4. Estimate cash flows

Investment success

Avoiding the wrong things

1. Don't buy weak businesses
2. Don't pay an exorbitant price
3. Stay away from excessive hype

Value investing seeks to follow the second method

- We buy strong companies when they are temporarily unpopular
- The unpopularity gives us a good entry point. Good companies are usually available cheap only when there is uncertainty about its immediate future.
- As long as we are confident about the company's long-term ability to compete in the marketplace, we should utilize the short-term fear to buy the stock at attractive prices.
- When the rest of the world turns very bullish about the company, we should exit.
- In the whole process, both aspects are important. We should be careful not to buy any junk, and also careful not to buy any company at exorbitantly high prices.
- This process, we believe, is in sync with the basic principle of the capital market, and provides more than an even chance of success.

POSITIONING

Organized Asset Management Business

Growth in assets is a function of performance

Performance is monitored at frequent intervals

"Underperformance" is seen as a sign of faltering

The desire to outperform at all points of time leads to an aversion to buying any stock that does not show a promise of fairly quick upward movement

This situation leads to segments of the market being ignored or neglected

Leaves a fertile ground for discerning buyers who have a slightly longer time horizon

Available in a majority of mainstream equity products

- Growth in Earning
- Quality of Management
- Competitiveness/Moat
- Entry Price

EXAMPLE OF PORTFOLIO PURCHASE – ASIAN PAINT– PER BAND CHART

Company Background:

- Asian Paints is the market leader in the Indian paint industry with 40%(approx) market share . Asian Paints manufactures a wide range of paints for decorative and industrial use and offers Wall Coverings, adhesives, and services under its portfolio. AP is also present in the Home Improvement and Decor segment and offers bath and kitchen products.
- Asian Paints is the strongest brand in the paints category, the widest dealer network & the most efficient working capital management in the industry.

Triggers for Purchase:

- The paint industry has historically grown in the range of 1.5x – 2x of the GDP growth rate. As per industry forecasts, it is expected that India GDP would grow more than 6% for the next decade implying high single digit to low double-digit growth rate for the paint industry.
- The urbanization and nuclear Family phenomenon is on a rise enabling growth for the paint industry. The smart cities and affordable housing would also create demand for paint sector.
- The company is doing major capex of INR 70 Bn in the next 3 years for backward integration and increasing the paint manufacturing capacity.
- The threat of competition from entry of Grasim has brought in pricing and margin fears, however, our channel checks indicate that there is unlikely to be a pricing war.
